Mrs. Scarritt's Crusade.

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

It is a dreadful thing to have a mission. Mabel Maitland found it a responsibility, and Roy Barnes declared it a bore, a fad and some other things to which she did not give vocal utterance in Mabel's presence.

To Roy it was a matter of supreme indifference whether women voted or not, but it seemed to Mabel that it was the vital question of the hour.

She attended all the suffrage meetings advertised and even formed a suffrage club among the girls of Cowdrey House, an establishment for self-supporting girls in which she had made her home since the death of her parents.

The Cowdrey Suffrage club was at best a lukewarm organization. The girls had joined "for the fun of the thing," and Mabel had to work hard to hold her converts in line.

This prevented her from giving much of her time to Roy, and his opinion of the suffragettes was the natural result. For five years he had begged Mabel to marry him, but even before the cry of "votes for women" became a fashionable slogan Mabel had pronounced ideas as to the independence of her sex, and Roy waited patiently while Mabel demonstrated her ability to earn her own living.

Then she had fallen under the influence of Mrs. Grace Brown-Hazzard and had been welcomed by the leader as an addition to the cause. The approval of this famous woman had the effect of making Mabel more enthusiastic, and presently she was devoting every evening to the Cowdrey branch of the society, and Roy was left out in the cold.

It was the rule that all lights were to be out at 11 in Cowdrey House, but with the aid of candles Mabel wrote far into the night on the speeches that Mrs. Brown-Hazzard delivered and dragged herself unwillingly to her work the following morning, sadly feeling the lack of sleep.

Mrs. Brown-Hazzard found in her new disciple a valued assistant, and her demand for speeches that offered a departure from her own stereotyped thoughts was insistent.

The more she praised the harder Mabel worked until at last the inevitable breakdown occurred, and Mabel was forced to resign her position and go into the country, where her scanty savings rapidly diminished. The pile of manuscripts for her idol, however, increased greatly.

Mrs. Scarritt, her new landlady, was much interested in the girl, and her protests against the manner in which Mabel was overworking were loud and emphatic.

"Better stop that foolishness," she argued, "and put some flesh on your bones."

"But the cause needs my work," cried the girl. "Mrs. Brown-Hazzard writes me that these speeches are doing a world of good; that I am making thousands of converts. Of course she flatters me there, for it is her magnetic personality that counts. I merely save her the worry of marshaling her arguments."

"Mrs. Brown-Hazzard?" mused Mrs. Scarritt. "Grace Brown married Ben Hazzard. You don't happen to know what your friend's husband's name is, do you?"

"It is B. Henderson Hazzard," responded Mabel.

"Named after his man," explained Mrs. Scarritt. "His man was Luella Henderson. We always did say that 'change of name and not of letter' meant 'change for worse and not for better.' It was Gene Hazzard that got the worst of it. My, but he was kept in after school the whole week."

"She never said anything about having been born here!" cried Mabel in surprise. "She did say in one of her letters that she knew that Cadyville was a beautiful place."

"Grace Brown ain't bragging about us, and we ain't bragging about Grace Brown," declared the old lady. "Grace always was a fraud," she went on.

"She used to get me to write her compositions for her, and Ben Burrows used to do her sums. She never did anything that she could coax some one else to do for her. I must say that she had nice ways about her. She could coax even the teacher into giving her good marks when she'd been kept in after school the whole week."

"She is the leader in a great cause," said Mabel reverently. "She has devoted her gifts to a great battle, and she will win for us. We shall get the vote before long, and the name of Mrs. Brown-Hazzard will go down through the ages as the woman who worked this great revolution in favor of woman's rights."

Mrs. Scarritt sniffed scornfully; then she looked down into the deep blue eyes glowing with the fires of enthusiasm. Mabel's cheeks were thin and white, and there was a little quiver of the chin that bespoke nervousness. Only the eyes betrayed animation. Mrs. Scarritt laid her hand gently upon the girl's arm.

"There's just one real right that a woman has," she insisted softly. "That's the right to marry a good man, and have him love and protect her. If she can get that she doesn't need to vote or do any of those fool things. She is content with her home and her babies."

It's when she doesn't get the man she wants that she seeks the excitement of some fool crusade like this.

"I've lived fifty-three years, my dear. I never voted, and I never wanted to, and I guess Silas and I are about as happy a pair of old folks as there are in the state. I spoke of Ben Burrows a moment ago. Grace loved him, but she married Hazzard because his folks died and he came into all the money. Grace knew that he would be easy to handle, so she threw Ben over and married Hazzard. I'll bet she thinks of Ben yet sometimes."

Mabel shuddered as she recalled certain times at Mrs. Brown-Hazzard's when her husband had almost staggered into the room to cringe under her glance. Then there would come over the woman's strong, rather masculine face a curious look of regret, and Mabel wondered if Mrs. Scarritt had not spoken the truth.

"I tell you, dear," continued the old lady, "there is nothing to voting. Let the men vote all they want so long as they make good husbands. That's all I've ever asked of Silas. I don't believe in throwing over a good man for the sake of voting for the president and the town council and all that. Election day is only once a year, and you're married 365 days in that time. You can't be a good wife and go gad-ding around too. You have to take your choice."

"But when you have a mission to uplift your sex," began Mabel, Mrs. Scarritt sniffed again.

"Uplift nothing," she said irritably. "You only lead 'em into mischief. Your mission is to marry and make some man happy and strong and a good citizen. That's the way to do your duty to your country."

"I turned away without answer. She was not used to ridicule except from Roy, and of course he was prejudiced. Here was Mrs. Scarritt making out her leader to be a selfish, sordid woman who, having thrown away her happiness, sought forgetfulness in the excitement of a crusade. It was a bitter blow, and she resented it."

Mrs. Scarritt did not speak again, and Mabel lay back in her chair, her tired eyes feasting upon the soft greens of the field and forest, touched here and there with the gold of the afternoon sun.

Across the road was another cottage with boarders. Its young bride, in whom the whole town seemed to take a personal interest, came out in her fresh white dress to watch for her husband. He came every Friday night, and stayed until Monday, and the little bride was always waiting for him at the gate.

A huge farm wagon rumbled past, a great covered affair, and from its cavernous depths there sprang an athletic form. Almost before she could realize it the little bride was folded in strong arms, and together the two went happily toward the house, laughing over the man's joke.

Mrs. Scarritt touched Mabel's arm.

"Isn't that better than a vote?" she asked.

"Going in to write?" asked Mrs. Scarritt.

"Yes," came the answer. "I want to write Mrs. Brown-Hazzard that I do not feel strong enough to write that speech she wants, and I want to write to Roy."

Mabel vanished indoors with a face of scarlet, and Mrs. Scarritt smiled as she rocked vigorously back and forth. She had not known of Roy, but she had imagined that somewhere in the background there was some one. Like Mrs. Brown-Hazzard, Mrs. Scarritt was a crusader, and a successful one.

His Revenge.

The discourtesy of some postoffice lady clerks in London is proverbial. Occasionally, however, the frail creature receives a Roland for an Oliver.

An irascible stockbroker entered a certain city office exactly at the hour of closing, and approaching the money order desk politely requested the pre-dilected genius to issue him an order for 45 shillings.

"Too late," said the damsel curtly, pointing with an ink stained finger to the clock. The indignant broker stormed, raved and finally challenged the correctness of the timepiece. The imperturbable lady smiled.

The following afternoon two minutes before the closing hour the merchant again presented himself and calmly asked:

"Am I too late?"

"Only just in time," replied the damsel crossly.

"Thank you. Now, miss, I must trouble you to issue me forty-eight orders for 1 shilling each."

"F-f-forty-eight!" gasped the horror-stricken woman. Her tea had just arrived and she was standing on a table behind the screen. "Surely you are joking?"

Making Literature Interesting.

"Oh, Mrs. Watts, you should join our literary society."

"Should I?"

"Yes, indeed. We study and learn so much. Last meeting we took up Carlyle's quarrels with his wife."

"It must have been interesting."

"Very. Next meeting we shall investigate the private life of Goethe and his love affairs."

"How instructive!"

"Yes, and we have found out everything about Poe's dissipation and disreputable conduct and propose soon to thoroughly investigate the actions of Voltaire."

"Indeed?"

HIS NINE CHEESES.

An Old Time New England Story of a Stingy Farmer.

Anecdotes in which the mean and grasping man is outwitted or held up to ridicule are popular everywhere and always. Few ancient towns are without their historic or traditional instances of stinginess punished or sharp practice defeated. In one village of New England, says the Youth's Companion, there is still current such a tale concerning an unpopular parson of more than a century ago.

Although a learned man of impressive manners, this clergyman was noted for undue reluctance to expend and readiness to acquire. He had a habit of pleading poverty and hinting for gifts.

The parish, although with some murmuring, had responded with fuel for his kitchen, hay for his horse. Thanks giving turkeys for his table and a "subscription clock" of black satin for his wife when her wedding memento became shabby. The murmurs increased when it was found that the parson turned an honest but over-shrewd penny by selling instead of using many of these donations. But they were not loud enough to disturb his stately calm, and he went his way without condescending to notice them. At last, however, fortune played him trick for trick.

One pleasant winter day he made a round of calls, and at each house, when just about to leave, he casually asked his hostess if she could let him have a little piece of cheese, as his wife happened to have none in the house and an unexpected company had arrived. In each case the good housewife, instead of a little piece, generously presented him with a whole cheese, which he graciously accepted. As he turned from the door stone at the close of the last visit, while the mother of the family and her brood of nine children stood politely gathered to watch him drive away, he carelessly pulled the wrong rein, the sleigh tipped sharply on a drift, and out from under the ministerial cap rode rolled nine large cheeses, which spun friskily away in all directions on the icy crust.

"Don't disturb yourself, pray, sir," she said politely as he made a motion to descend. "It is quite unnecessary. The children will gather them up, and none will be overburdened or will there be any needling for the privilege. See? It is just a cheese to a child."

So it was, and the embarrassed parson, unable to escape, was obliged to receive back his cheeses, with due thanks to each giggling volunteer as they came up in gleeful procession one by one.

Too well he knew that by the next day the whole parish would be laughing at his misadventure, although he could scarcely have guessed that the joke would be recalled a hundred years later.

Nature's Cunning.

Protective mimicry, that cunning device of nature to preserve animals from their enemies, is well known in the eggs of certain fishes, notably the California shark, known as Gyronotus francisci. The shark is of a sluggish habit, lurking among rocks, and its dark egg resembles a leaf of kelp or seaweed folded up spirally. It is deposited among the beds of kelp and clings to the leaves by the edges of the spirals. The young shark bursts open the end of the egg and swims away. Another shark's egg of the Pacific coast has tentacles which clasp the seaweed and also imitate its appearance.

Mozart and Drctzner.

When Mozart was at the height of his fame he composed the music of Bretzner's "Belmont and Konstanze" ("The Abduction From the Seraglio") at the request of Emperor Joseph II. The author of the drama was so angry at this that he inserted the following notice in the Leipziger Zeitung: "A certain fellow of the name of Mozart has dared to misuse my drama, 'Belmont and Konstanze,' for an opera text. I hereby solemnly protest against this invasion of my rights, and I reserve to myself further proceedings. (Signed) Christoph Friedrich Bretzner, Author of 'Rausch-chen.'"

Long Necked Bells.

Eastern standards of beauty differ, like the customs, from those of the west. In Malacca, we are told, the small waist and velvet eyes do not count, but instead the length of the neck is the criterion of beauty. The girl of Malacca at a very early age is fitted with a metal collar, which compels her to keep her head erect, and as she grows the collar is increased in size, and by this means the neck is gradually elongated.

Quite Enough.

"I should think you'd go slow," said the cautious friend. "You know, as Lincoln said, 'you can fool all the people some of the time and some of the people all the time.'"

"That's all right," interrupted the sharper, "but I find it's always possible to fool enough of the people enough of the time."—Philadelphia Press.

The Worst of It.

Suffragette Lecturer—Yes, my sisters, man has tyrannized over us, oppressed us, abused us, untried us, scorned us, ridiculed us, and—Ancient Maiden in audience—Yes, and, what is worse, he never married us.—Kansas City Independent.

Humanity vs. Science.

PRESIDENT WHEELER, of the University of California, has temporarily ceased to mix in with National affairs at Washington, and has now taking a hand in the reformation of San Francisco's accommodations for the indigent sick and disabled poor. For a university president he shows a woeful lack of the comprehension of charity reform and immeasurable short interest in getting good specimens for experimenting youth in the university medical departments. His proposed measures he intended should benefit the city of San Francisco and the University of California—the former's finances, and the latter's experimental material. The poor sick objects of charity would be turned over to the students in the interest of science. Hitherto the faculty has waited for this class of patients to die before carting them off to the medical schools, but President Wheeler is out for live specimens. There is altogether too much experimental surgery nowadays, even among physicians of reputation and patients of means. If a patient were at the mercy of a scientific school, where everything is a matter of experiment, he would have a cheerful prospect. The charity patient has no redress, and the responsibility, if reposed in the august universities, would absolve the city from interference, for a municipality is a layman as compared with the learned professors and their student classes in science.

Fortunately the Supervisors of San Francisco do not take kindly to the suggestion, and will probably rebuild and re-equip the City and County Hospital. This institution, like other city charity infirmaries, is far from what real charity reformers want, for it is a notorious fact that the indigent are often woefully neglected and even mistreated. There is opportunity for graft and scandal, and all at the expense of the infirm. The city may suffer, but it is the human being who really suffers when such places are mismanaged. The new institution which the city will erect will no doubt be splendid without, and have the advantage of sanitation, but its internal administration will require the greatest vigilance. Mayor Taylor should prove an able overseer.

President Wheeler realizes that there is something wrong in the manner of caring for the city's sick, but he has figured out a panacea which would inflict worse than neglect upon the suffering. His scheme might ultimately enable young graduates of the university to diagnose correctly and to really be able to recognize cases of appendicitis in the rich, but the indigent poor have no right to be led to the sacrificial altar for the sake of their more fortunate brothers. The poor are not so philanthropic, nor so hopeless, that they would cheerfully give up their poor shadows to science.

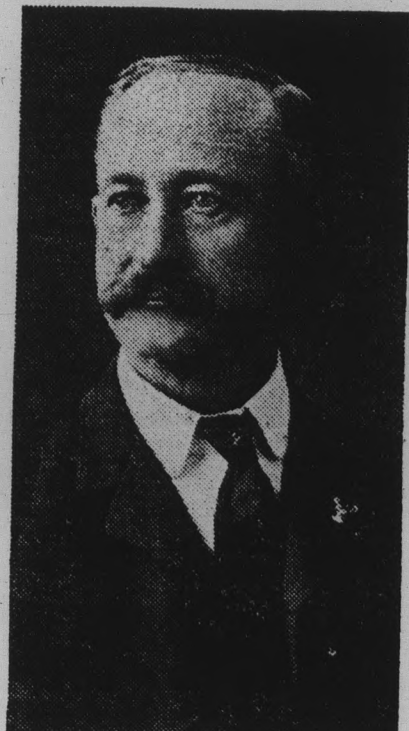

Blair Hart—A Tribute To a Worthy Man.

In the language of the late John A. Logan of Illinois, patriot, soldier and statesman, "It is better to trust those who are tried, than those who pretend." These words very fittingly apply to the Supervisorial contest in this district. Blair Hart, who has held the office for eight years is a tried official who has been both honest and capable in conducting the affairs of his district. He is a candidate for another term at the earnest solicitation of the people of his district, both Democrats and Republicans, who are averse to trusting an untried man for a position that has been so honorably, economically and capably filled by Blair Hart, than whom no man has proven himself better qualified.

"No men living are more worthy to be trusted than those who toil up from poverty—none less inclined to take or touch aught which they have not honestly earned." Thus spake the martyred Abraham Lincoln. No truer words were ever uttered and they aptly apply to Blair Hart, candidate for Supervisor, who unlike his opponent, was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth. Mr. Hart is essentially a man of the people.

For over forty years he has lived among us on his little farm near Lakeville, where he tilled the soil and prospered, respected and honored for miles round by his neighbors. Like most of our self-made men Blair Hart by toil, patience and honesty of purpose has succeeded in life solely through his own individual efforts and he stands to-day in the prime of life a man among men, and one, too, who has not forgotten that in his day he has been a toiler among the toilers of the land.

As Supervisor of the First District Mr. Hart has at all times looked after the roads and attended to the general interests of his district faithfully and well. It is true he has not pleased some of the people all the time, nor all the people all the time, but he has pleased most of the people most of the time. No better evidence of this fact will be wanting when his fellow citizens will have endorsed him at the polls on election day for another term by one the handsomest majorities ever accorded a candidate for Supervisor in this district.

BLAIR HART.

Whyfores and Wherefores.

"MR. GRANICE, the self-styled dictator of the Republican party," screeches the frantic Mr. Bigelow in his wild chase for office. We would inform the misguided office-chaser that we have no aspirations for a job that he is now attempting to hold down. We are perfectly satisfied with dictating the policies of the INDEX-TRIBUNE, the efforts of Mr. Bigelow to control its editorial utterances to the contrary notwithstanding. That is why we say "Vote for Blair Hart, for Supervisor," and our saying so don't cost Mr. Hart one cent either.

No One Knows it Better.

MR. BIGELOW, who is running for Supervisor on an insurgent prohibition platform that ought to consign him to political oblivion, sneeringly says in his pinto-Democratic organ of last week that the editorial columns of the INDEX-TRIBUNE cannot be bought. You are dead right there, Mr. Bigelow, and no one knows it better than yourself. We are surprised that you would allude to it.

WATER GALORE GUSHES FORTH.

A Great Flow of Water Encountered on the Halstead Place.

On Tuesday morning the employees of the Ed. Johannsen's well-boring outfit, engaged in sinking a well on the Halstead place at Agua Caliente, encountered a great flow of hot water—in fact, so warm, that one of the employees very tersely stated that he thought the "lower regions were not far away." The depth reached was 245 feet when the gusher was encountered, and the temperature is 106 degrees, and gradually increasing. As the flow at present is 1200 gallons per hour, with the prospect of a greater flow, it is easy to contemplate what this will mean for the future of Agua Caliente.

We are informed that several more wells are to be bored on the premises, to supply water for the modern $50,000 hotel, cottages, and other improvements that are to be made on the same by the new purchasers.

Wine-Making About Over.

Wine-making in this valley is about over for the season. Grape-crushing at the Mt. Pisgah winery ceased last Saturday. The product of the winery will be about forty thousand gallons of red and white wine. This is a falling off from last season's product, but the quality of the wine, not only at Mt. Pisgah, but of all the cellars in the valley, will be superior to that of last year's output.

The Petaluma Courier states in its issue following the dynamite explosion at the Spreckels ranch last Thursday, that the concussion and noise was plainly heard and felt in Petaluma. "The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures and purifies the blood, thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

SAN FRANCISCO

Official Paper of Sonoma.

For the destruction of the microbes of all kinds of discord, spray well with the oil of harmony.

A slight frost was visible on Tuesday morning, which reminds us that the winter season is not far off.

Ideal Sonoma county weather this week, the mornings and evenings a little crimp, but warm and pleasant throughout the day.

The fall meeting of the Sonoma County Association of Congregational Churches will be held at Cloverdale on the 27th instant.

Natalie Pucci, who was mysteriously shot at Glen Ellen on Wednesday of last week is still alive, and at last accounts was doing nicely.

Some people are like the robin. The robin attracts a great deal of attention when it first comes to town, but you never hear of it afterward.

A lad named Arthur Silversmith was rescued from drowning in Green Brae Slough on Sunday of last week by George Gleason, an employee of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

It is stated that for several days following the fearful accident on the Spreckels ranch, work was at a standstill—the employees being completely unnerved by the terrible affair.

A recent arrival of the wet season, many of the house-gardens about town are undergoing a series of cleansing, and "the man with the hoe," or rake, is pretty much in evidence.

The scientist who declares we are all going to freeze to death appears to be exactly opposite in opinion to most clerical gentlemen, who occasionally have much to say regarding the same.

The Sonoma Grammar school boys proved too much for the basket ball team from the poultry town in a game played in this city at Union Hall, last Friday evening, beating them by a score of 25 to 21.

THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY NOMINEES

Will be Here This Evening and Will Address the People at Union Hall.

The Republican county nominees will address the people of Sonoma and vicinity in Union Hall this (Saturday) evening. The Sonoma Valley Band has been engaged for the occasion, and a rousing reception will be accorded the candidates befitting the banner Republican precinct of Sonoma county.

Among the principal speakers of the evening will be Hon. Ross Campbell, of Santa Rosa, Hon. Jos. P. Berry and Judge Thos. C. Denny, nominees for Superior Judges, and Hon. H. W. A. Weske, candidate for the Assembly. J. K. Bigelow, who is running for Supervisor on an independent platform of his own construction, is expected to be present and explain himself.

A Delicate Surgical Operation.

Russell Prestwood, the ten-year-old son of Prof. Prestwood, principal of the Sonoma Grammar school, underwent a very delicate surgical operation last Monday. While eating walnuts on Friday of last week, a piece of kernel became lodged in his wind-pipe, and all efforts to dislodge it proved futile. After suffering for two days the throat became so swollen that it was with difficulty that the lad was able to breathe. Drs. Thomson and Hays then had the little sufferer removed to Green's sanitarium, and as a last resort in order to save his life, decided to remove the obstruction by cutting into the wind-pipe. The piece of kernel, which was about the size of a bean, was successfully removed, and at latest accounts the lad was getting along nicely.

Will Continue the Business

J. B. Warwick, a recent arrival from Willits, Mendocino county, has purchased the five-acre tract of J. Rayband, located in the outskirts of Sonoma—chickens, Belgian hares, etc., and will continue the business at the same old stand. As Mr. Warwick is a poultryman of large experience, we expect to see him, "ere the Springtime comes, get him Annie," sporting a "cologne wagon" and other necessary adjuncts suggestive of the bloated bondholder.

New Great Register

County Clerk Fred L. Wright and his efficient corps of deputies have placed in the hands of the printer the new Great Register of Sonoma county. The register contains the names of 11,266 voters, a gain of 300 over the registration of two years ago. Sonoma, whose registration was 230 in 1906, has now 245 voters, a gain of 15. Agua Caliente precinct also shows a gain of 49.

Something Radically Wrong

Since the discontinuance of the fish breeding establishment near Glen Ellen millions of little trout fry have been dumped into the Sonoma Creek and its tributaries by deputies of the Fish Commission, and if there is any virtue in this system of miniature fish planting, this particular water course does not show it, as it has been going from bad to worse ever since the old trout hatchery was discontinued.

NECROLOGY.

Two Pioneer Women of this County Pass Away.

MRS. AGNES SCHIECK. Mrs. Agnes Schieck, a well-known and respected resident of Bennett Valley, died at the residence of her son, David Schieck, during Saturday night, of last week, at the age of seventy-eight years. She had resided in that vicinity for many years, and had reared three sons and a daughter, Herman Schieck, of Penn Grove, Fred Schieck of Vallejo, and David Schieck and Mrs. Brockmon, of Bennett Valley. The remains were interred in the Sonoma cemetery on the Monday following her demise.

MRS. LETTIE SHINN. Mrs. Lettie Lozy Maddux Shinn, wife of Silas M. Shinn, passed away on last Sunday morning at the family home on Redwood Farm, near Glen Ellen, from general debility due to old age. Deceased was born in Illinois in 1825, and was 83 years of age at the time of her death. She is survived by three daughters, Miss Sardina Wilson, of Bennett Valley, Mrs. Lee Laughlin, of Windsor, and Mrs. W. A. Thompson, of Redwood Farm. The funeral took place on Monday, and was largely attended.

FUNERAL OF ALFRED GUSTAFSON. The funeral of Alfred Gustafson, one of the victims of the dynamite disaster on the Spreckels ranch, took place Sunday, and was largely attended. The funeral arrangements were made by his friend, F. Nichelini and his cousin, Andrew Neuman. Rudolph Spreckels, upon whose ranch the accident occurred generously came forward and assumed all the expenses of the funeral.

To be Made Satisfactory.

In a recent interview with C. F. Ryer, the superintendent of the Merry-Elwell Bridge Building Company, who had the contract for the erection of the bridge across Sonoma Creek, near Graham's canyon, about which several residents of Glen Ellen made complaints recently in a communication to the press, he stated that the bridge is being completed. The trouble with the south end of the structure, he said, resulted from the fact that the wall built was too light to support the fill. Now an eighteen-inch wall will replace the six inch wall, and the two wings will be rebuilt. This will be done by the firm, Ryer stated, without extra charge to the county, as the firm was desirous of doing first-class work on all their contracts, and did not want any kinks. The stronger wall should have been built in the first place, he said. The bridge has not yet been accepted by the Supervisors.

Fire Near Sobra Vista.

The cottage of Mrs. Margaret Deheney, located just east of the Spreckels ranch, was destroyed by fire on Friday night of last week. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin, as no one was at home when it occurred. The place is leased by Harry Sophey, who was in San Francisco. Lou Williams, the foreman of the ranch, and a hired man, were in Lakeville transacting business, and upon returning found the residence and barn in ashes.

Eph. Weiss, the expert refractionist, will be in Sonoma, at the Union Hotel, November 2d.

COMMUNICATION.

Mr. Bigelow and the Republican County Committee from Sonoma Precinct.

At the Republican primary election held here for delegates to the County Convention, I was elected a delegate by Republican voters who did not want Mr. Bigelow nominated for Supervisor—and I did not vote for his nomination. Ever since then attempts have been made to discredit me with the Republican voters. I have been hounded, picked at and threatened until I think it is time the public knew something of my position.

Some time ago, Mr. Bigelow, candidate for Supervisor from this district, came to me and requested me to sign an endorsement of his proclamation and private platform. I asked him his object in having me sign it. He did not tell me, and I did not sign it. (His language and manner then were not very temperate). This document is on front page of Expositor of October 16th. When he comes to my name, he says: "Mr. Beretta did not sign, because he is for the Democratic candidate, Blair Hart."

Now, Mr. Voter, kindly go over Mr. Bigelow's proclamation with me, and look at it from my point of view, and I will then ask you, "Would you endorse it?"

He says there are 61 saloons or road-houses; (call them resorts, hotels, or whatever you like), where liquor is sold in this valley. Now, Mr. Voter, doesn't his proclamation say that he does not want any more of them. Answer—Yes.

The erection of a large resort, with bar attached, is now contemplated on the Halstead place, and still others are contemplated for the accommodation of more summer boarders for this Valley. According to Mr. Bigelow's proclamation he is opposed to these improvements. Isn't he?

Again, if he is in favor of granting liquor licenses to these places spoken of, then his proclamation is an untruth, isn't it? And had I signed it, I would be endorsing misleading statements, wouldn't I? Now, I am in favor of more improvements in this valley, even if they are hotels with bars attached; consequently Bigelow should not have expected my signature.

Mr. Bigelow says, "No one man's job" on the county roads, and everybody who wants a job should have it. Apparently this means that there are to be no road masters. Is everybody to be turned loose on the roads to work, and is Mr. Bigelow going to oversee the time in six road districts at one time? What do you think of it, Mr. Voter? Should I endorse that?

In another statement, Mr. Bigelow says to the saloonmen: "When a man comes in and passes your license over your bar, and says one dollar for delivering it, is it a HOLD-UP?" Mr. Collins is the License Collector for this county, and a letter from him says that it is a lie for anyone to say that he has ever collected a dollar that wasn't rightfully due his office. Mr. Voter, do you endorse this insinuation against the integrity of an honest Republican county official?

The more I see of Mr. Bigelow and his political allies, the more I think it is to be pitied in having been allowed to wander from his parent's apron strings to aspire to the important office of Supervisor of this district. A. BERETTA, Delegate to Republican County Convention.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success. That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

THIS IS SAID TO HELP MANY.

Mix This Simple, Helpful Receipt at Home and Try It, Anyway.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Karagon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered as the most certain prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home, when asked, stated that he could either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommends it as harmless.

It's going to be great! The Old Times Concert to be given by the ladies of the Congregational church on November 6th.

AN AMERICAN HERO.

He Used His Own Body to Stop a Leak in a Ferryboat.

One morning in January, when the ice in the Hudson river ran unusually heavy, a Hoboken ferryboat slowly crunched her way through the floating floes until the thickness of the pack choked her paddles in midriver. It was an early morning trip, and the decks were crowded with laboring men and the driveways choked with teams. The women and children standing inside the cabins were a solid mass up to the swinging doors. While she was gathering strength for a further effort, the ocean tug sheered to avoid her, veered a point and crashed into her side, cutting her below the water line in a great V shaped gash. A moment more and the disabled boat careened from the shock and fell over on her beam. Helpless. Into the V shaped gash the water poured a torrent. It seemed but a question of minutes before she would lunge headlong below the ice.

Within 200 yards of both boats and free of the heavy ice steamed the wrecking tug, Beliance of the Off-shore Wrecking company, and on her deck forward stood Captain Scott. When the ocean tug reversed her engines after the collision and backed clear of the shattered wheelhouse of the ferryboat he sprang forward, stooped down, ran his eye along the water line, noted in a flash every shattered plank, climbed into the pilothouse of his own boat and before the astonished pilot could catch his breath pushed the nose of the Beliance along the rail of the ferryboat and dropped upon the latter's deck like a cat.

With a threat to throw overboard any man who stirred he dropped into the engine room, met the engineer halfway up the ladder, compelled him to return, dragged the mattresses from the crew's bunks, stripped off blankets and snatched up clothes, overalls, cotton waste and rags of carpet, crumpling them into the great rent left by the tug's cutter.

It was useless. Little by little the water gained, bursting out first below, then on one side, only to be calked out again and only to rush in once more. Captain Scott stood a moment as if undecided, ran his eye searching over the engine room, saw that by his needs it was empty, then deliberately tore down the top wall calking he had so carefully built up and before the engineer could protest forced his body into the gap, with his arm outside level with the drifting ice.

An hour later the disabled ferryboat, with every soul on board, was towed into the Hoboken slip.

When they lifted the captain from the wreck he was unconscious and barely alive. The water had frozen his blood, and the floating ice had torn the flesh from his protruding arm from shoulder to wrist. When the color began to creep back to his cheeks he opened his eyes and said to the doctor who was winding the bandages:

"Wuz any of them babies hurt?" A month passed before he regained his strength and another week before the arm had healed so that he could get his coat on. Then he went back to the Beliance.—Everybody's Magazine.

A Lesson In Patience.
When the eminent botanist, Professor Altman of Glasgow, was a small boy, he had the present of a silver bit, whereupon his mother was so worried with questions as to what he should do with it that she exclaimed, "Really, you had better go to Thomas Elliot's (a well known pharmacist) and buy sixpence worth of patience."

Down the street marched the lad and demanded of the chemist, "Mr. Elliot, please give me sixpence worth of patience."

Mr. Elliot, taking in the situation at a glance, said: "Certainly, my boy; there's a chair. Just sit down and wait till you get it."

Professor Altman's endeavor to purchase patience was a great success. It made a deep impression on the lad and was one of the factors of his success in life.

Outreasoning Reason.
Little Raymond's mother had told him that she should put him to bed if he disobeyed her command in a certain matter. Impatience overcame him, and when his mother proceeded to fulfill her duty sobs of anguish filled the room.

"But, Raymond," said the mother gently, "I told you I should punish you in this way if you disobeyed, and mother must keep her word, you know."

Between muffled sobs Raymond managed to say, "You needn't break your word, mamma, but couldn't you change your mind?"—Woman's Home Companion.

The Tactful Doctor.
A physician in a small town in northern Michigan got himself into a serious predicament by his inability to remember names and people. One day while making out a patient's receipt his visitor's name escaped him. Not wishing to appear so forgetful and thinking to get a clue, he asked her whether she spelled her name with an "e" or "a". The lady smilingly replied, "Why, doctor, my name is HILL."—Success Magazine.

Your Enemies.
Don't make enemies unnecessarily. Your friends don't do much for you as you all know; but your enemies will be awake nights looking for opportunity to take a shot at you. And you all know that too.—Atchison Globe.

Great Britain has the longest coast line of any country in Europe. Italy, Sweden and France come next in the order given.

Towed by a Halibut.

About the mouths of the streams on which salmon camps are situated the Indian dogs and children amuse themselves catching the fish. Some of the youngsters are so small that after they have succeeded in cornering a fish the combined efforts of the party are often required to dispatch it and carry it to camp. I have watched dogs running about in a rift snapping at the salmon and apparently having the time of their lives.

One of the most amusing sights that I saw during my stay in Alaska was two Indian boys being towed about the harbor at Kadiak by a huge halibut that had just hooked. Utterly unable to land the fish, they had fastened the line to the stern of the boat, and while they pulled with all their might, each one at an oar, they called each other for not exerting more strength and shouted loudly for help. Finally an Indian put out in a boat, and the fish was landed.—Forest and Stream.

Bewildering France.

There are in France two Bordeaux, the one in the Gironde and a tiny place in the Loiret. There are two Toulouses, the old town in the Haute-Garonne and Toulouse du Jura, a village with 600 inhabitants, near Lons-le-Saunier. There is Tours in Touraine, Balzac's Tours in the Indre-et-Loire and Tours, a village in Sarthe, near Albierville. There are seven St. Cys, simple St. Cys, that is, and twenty-four with something tacked on to them; seven St. Denises and forty-seven with some addition, fourteen St. Germain and 114 with something tacked on.

Still Susceptible.

He was a nervous, fidgety young man, and he looked with considerable apprehension at the woman next him, who held a baby, its face covered with a thick veil. The baby gave now and then a sharp cry, which the woman evidently tried to suppress.

At last, after many anxious glances, the young man spoke. "Has—has that baby any—anything contagious?" he asked.

The woman looked at him with a mixture of scorn and pity. "Two—two—two for most folks," she said in a clear, carrying tone, "but maybe 'twould for you. He's teething."

The Adventurous Felino.

"Hello! Is this the electric company? Do you take cats down? Yes, cats! One is on a pole and crying just terribly. She must have been up there a week, for she's just as thin—What? Oh, this is Fifty-fifth avenue! A big dog is barking at her, too, and she—What street? Why, I don't know. I don't live on this street, do I? Oh, yes, of course! Bristol street, the drugist says. Oh, will you? You are so good! And a man just said she is playing with the transformer and might short circuit herself or something. Well, thank you very much. I am so glad! Goodbye!"—Success Magazine.

The Considerate Wife.

"Mrs. Rogers is a perfect slave to her husband."

"What does she do?" "Would you believe it? Every year on his birthday she gets up in time to eat breakfast with him."—Judge's Library.

Short Memory.

"My wife," growled Hadley, "is the most forgetful woman."

"Indeed!" queried his friend politely.

"Yes. She can never remember in the morning where I left my pipe the night before."—Philadelphia Press.
